

Climbing Iliniza Sur - 5.266mts

To climb Iliniza Sur requires good technical ability for mixed climbing. You should know how to climb on ice and rock, and be in good physical shape. This mountain is far more technical than Cotopaxi or Chimborazo.

Day 1: Quito – El Chaupi

Depart from Quito at 10:00a.m and drive approx. 3 hours to la Virgen below the mountain refuge we will have lunch then continue up to the refuge 4.600mts and rest. In the afternoon, we will have a safety briefing. Dinner and overnight/mountain lodge.

Day 2: Refuge – Iliniza Sur Summit

After a very early breakfast at 4:00 a.m., we climb to the summit, which should take us 4 to 5 hours, with good weather. Once we reach the summit, we will descend to the refuge (approx. 2 hours). Return to Quito.

Price includes:

Private transportation (4X4), park fees, and certified guides: one for every two clients, mountain meals: 2 lunches, 1 dinner, 1 breakfast, tee coffee, mountain lodge overnight.

Not included:

Climbing equipment: boots, crampons, harness, ice axe, mittens, rain jacket, sleeping bag, personal equipment, meals not mentioned, personal expenses, tips and beverages.

What to bring:

Back pack, warm and rain clothes, trek shoes, 2 to 3 pair of socks, hat or cap, gloves, flashlight (torch) with spare batteries, sunglasses with a strap, sun block, camera, with spare batteries

